The passage below is taken from The Perfect Friend, by Barbara Copperthwaite. The paragraphs labelled A–F are in the wrong order. Put them into the correct order.

A	"Well, if this is what a bad influence does, long may it continue. You look good in those jeans, by the way. Told you that you don't look like mutton dressed as lamb in them, you idiot — glad you listened to me. Wish you'd gone for another colour, though. Is that top new too?"
B	Carrie herself is a kaleidoscope of colour in her multihued, floaty dress, which is a firm favourite from the charity shop.
C	"Drinks on a Sunday evening? It's not like you to be spontaneous, Alex. I must be rubbing off on you!"
D	"The label describes is as onyx," I say.
E	It is. I'm wearing black jeans, black boots, black suede jacket, and have just realised by new top is also…
F	"Leading me astray, more like."

Read this passage carefully and then answer the questions that follow.

The Summer of Impossible Things

by Rowan Coleman

We travel in a kind of bubble, my little sister Pia and I, sheltered in the quiet, cool interior of an air-conditioned cab, while outside the searing summer streets of an unfamiliar landscape unfold ever outwards as we make each turn. We slip past bridges and buildings that are a kind of second-hand familiar, the relics of the tales that we grew up listening to; a constantly increasing map of a world neither of us have ever visited before, but which is written into our DNA.

Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, is nothing like I imagined it would be after a life-time of watching movies set in New York State. It's a low, two-storey landscape of wide avenues and neat, wooden-clad houses; small-town America, on the edge of a huge borough that lives right next door, the greatest city on earth. New York seems to peer at Bay Ridge over the expanse of the Hudson with an uninterested shrug.

There is an air of quiet certainty unfurling in the searing July sunshine. Even the people meandering down the sidewalks have an innately serene look about them, as if this place is made only for them, a safe place, a place where the rest of the world never looks, a place where secrets might never be discovered if you know where to hide them. This is where life and love and death can quietly play out, without barely making a ripple on the surface of the planet. It's almost as if when you cross the Brooklyn Bridge time slows down just a little, right at its zenith.

This is the world where our mother grew up, the world she ran away from, never to return. It never occurred to us that one day it would be us travelling back here, all the way back to her starting point. Officially we are here to finally settle her estate, and begin the sale of the long-derelict, boarded-up building she co-owned with her sister, a woman she hadn't spoken to in thirty years. The building had once been her home, the centre of her universe. Unofficially, secretly, we came because she told us to. To look for her, and to look for clues about my biological father, whose existence still seems like a mangled dream to me.

"She could have just got it wrong," Pea had said after the film ended, disturbed dust still settling in the light of Dad's projector that we'd had to borrow in secret. "I mean, in her darkest moment, she had delusions. She had fantasies.

She could have just been living a nightmare out loud, that could be it."

"Yes," I said, slowly, uncertainly, letting her words seep into me through every pore. "Yes, it could be that… but…"

I looked at my sister, and I knew she was beginning to see what I already knew. My bright-blue eyes, the only blue eyes for generations on either side of the family, as far back as anyone can remember.

"But you have to find out if it might be true," Pea finished for me. "They loved each other so much, especially back then, when she left Brooklyn, left her family to be with him. It just doesn't make sense that there would be another man… But even if there was, it doesn't change anything. You're still you. You're still our Luna."

She couldn't know that I had always felt a little bit like a stranger in my own family, a little bit out of step with them. That, somehow, what Mum said was strangely comforting.

Dad had wanted to come on this trip, but we'd persuaded him to stay at home. Even now, months later, he was so fragile after losing her, his blood pressure still high, and the doctor didn't recommend flying. We didn't tell him about the film, even though we could have. We could have asked him outright if it was true, and taken him at his word, but we didn't. It seemed too cruel for him to lose a wife and a daughter in the space of a few months, even if we loved each other in just the same way as we always have. I think him knowing that I knew would hurt him.

Answer the questions below. Look at the passage again if you need to.
You should choose the best answer and mark its letter on your answer sheet.

17 'We travel in a kind of bubble…' (line 1).
What does this mean?

- A The cab smelt like a bubble bath.
- B They were completely trapped inside the cab, unable to open the doors.
- C The cab was bouncing along very gently.
- D The environment inside the cab was completely different to the environment outside.

18 What does the use of alliteration in 'searing summer streets' (line 2) emphasise?

- E how incredibly hot the day was
- F how long their journey was
- G how uncomfortable the sisters must have been

19 Why was Bay Ridge 'second-hand familiar' (line 4) to the sisters?

- H They had seen numerous photographs of it.
- I They had been there before.
- J Their mother had told them stories about it.
- K They had been born there.
- L It was very similar to the town where they lived.

20 'New York seems to peer at Bay Ridge over the expanse of the Hudson with an uninterested shrug.' (lines 10–12) Which language technique is being used here?

M a simile
N exaggeration
O personification

21 How would the narrator be most likely to describe Bay Ridge at this point in the novel?

P small and beautiful
Q relaxed and self-contained
R dull and too quiet
S the greatest place in the world
T dangerous and exciting

22 How do we know that the sisters' mother had been unwell?

U She hadn't been able to speak for thirty years.
V She had said that Pea's father was not Luna's biological father.
W She was dead, so she must have been unwell prior to her death.
X Pea said that her mother had had fantasies and delusions.

23 Why are the names Pia and Pea used in the extract?

A Pea is obviously a nickname for Pia.
B Pia must be a typing error.
C Pia and Pea are two different people.
D Pea is how Luna pronounces the name Pia.
E Pea is how Pia pronounces the name Pia.

The passage below is taken from The Summer of Impossible Things, by Rowan Coleman. Read it carefully and then answer the questions that follow.

Pea comes to stand at my shoulder as we scan the photographs, face after face fixed in timeless grins, celebrating some moment whose meaning has long since been lost, a gallery of forgotten happy days.

"Oh god!" The words burst out as I come across a photo of Mum with Dad, and a group of six other people standing outside of Mrs Finkle's house. "It's her, it's Mum! Look, Pea, it's Mum!"

Reaching up I take the photo down carefully, a little shower of dust coming with it, and I bring it over to the window, dragging back some of the heavy lace curtains to let in a little more light.

Answer the questions by choosing the best answer.
Look at the passage again if you need to.

76 Why is the word 'fixed' used to describe the grins on the faces in the photographs?

A to tell us that the photographer made everybody grin for the camera

B to tell us that the photographs were fixed firmly to the wall

C to remind us that the image in a photograph does not change over time

D to tell us that the photographs have been edited to make it look like everybody is grinning

77 Which word best sums up how the narrator feels when she spots her mum in one of the photographs?

E excited
F sad
G annoyed
H puzzled

78 Why does the narrator 'let in a little more light'?

I to help wake herself up
J to get an idea of what time of day it is
K to stop herself from feeling faint
L to be able to see the photograph better

English Practice Test

Please mark boxes with a thin horizontal like this:

In the first example, on the left, the answer selected is C.

In the second example, on the right, the answer selected is J.

A line is drawn through the letter. It may go outside the brackets, but MUST NOT cross the outer border of the box.

Maths Practice Test

For multiple-choice questions, please mark boxes in the same way as shown above.

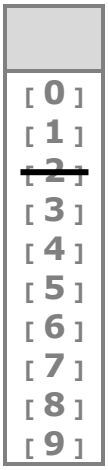

For questions that require numerical answers, there will be columns that represent units, tens, hundreds and thousands.

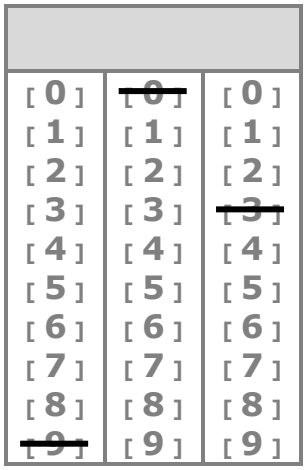

For a single-digit answer, there will be one column on the answer sheet in which to record your answer.

For a 2-digit answer, there will be two columns on the answer sheet.

For a 3-digit answer, there will be three columns on the answer sheet, and so on.

In the first example, on the left, a single-digit answer of 2 is marked.

In the second example, on the right, a 3-digit answer of 903 is marked.

A time answer would be given as a 4-digit answer like a 24-hour digital clock and a money answer would be given in pounds as a decimal number.

In the first example, on the left, an answer of quarter past 6 in the morning (06:15) is marked.

In the second example, on the right, an answer of 10 pounds and 25 pence (£10.25) is marked.

A line is drawn through each digit. It may go outside the brackets, but MUST NOT cross the outer border of the box.
